Case Study: Town of Milton

- In 2024, The Town of Milton established a new special services district and as a result projected population to increase from 3,672 to 7,377.
- The Town engaged PFMGC to evaluate the development's potential impact on existing operations, the estimated costs needed to scale up operations, and how those investments align with the timing of additional revenues.
- In the short-term, the Town needed a high-level estimate of how operations and infrastructure needs could change and the associated cost of scaling up government operations to handle the higher workload. In the mid-term, the Town needed support to develop more detailed cost estimates, and a better understanding of how those cost increases align with the longer-term revenue picture. In the long-term, there would be value in having some tools and processes in place to evaluate the fiscal and operational impact of this special service district.
- To provide this short-, mid- and long-term support for the Town, PFMGC provided three separate analyses:
 - 1) Financial projection: PFMGC developed a baseline projection for the Town's General Fund to evaluate any fiscal pressure the Town may be experiencing before any additional service demands brought by the special services district. PFMGC then worked with Town officials to determine how much and when the additional revenue from the new special services district would arrive. Finally, PFMGC layered in the cost of scaling up operations and worked with Town officials to determine the timing of when those dollars will have to be allocated.
 - 2) High-level menu of options: The Excel model used to develop the financial projection was built in a user-friendly way that allowed the Town to easily adjust assumptions related to tax rates, fee levels, staffing, salary and benefits costs, and assumed debt issuances. Those inputs were built into the financial projection model and were meant to provide the Town with a flexible tool to evaluate options to close the projected fiscal gap. As part of this analysis, PFMGC provided several potential scenarios that allowed the Town to close the projected budget gap.
 - 3) Fiscal analysis presentation: PFMGC summarized the findings from the financial projection and high-level menu of options into a PowerPoint presentation and presented the findings at a Town Council meeting. The presentation provided the audience an understanding of why the establishment of the special services district – despite the additional revenues it could bring in the long-term – can still create short-term financial challenges for the Town. The presentation also provided Town officials a high-level preliminary plan for scaling up operations, investing in infrastructure, and maintaining fiscal balance in the long-term.

Case Study: Town of Ocean View

- In 2024, PFMGC was engaged by the Town of Ocean View to develop a financial condition assessment in light of anticipated one-time proceeds from the water infrastructure sale.
- PFMGC developed a five-year forecast for the General Fund and presented to Town leaders regarding the opportunities and challenges based on the financial outlook. In February 2025, PFMGC presented to Town Council the summary of the financial condition assessment and provided two primary recommendations for consideration:
 - 1) Create policy guardrails, including multiple reserve policies and a real estate tax policy
 - 2) Develop capital funding alternatives, including the use of one-time proceeds
- These recommendations provided Town leaders with tangible next steps to ensure that one-time proceeds are strategically invested. They also ensure that the Town has the right policy guardrails in place to improve the Town's financial trajectory and create funding for future capital improvements.
- In addition to these two recommendations, PFMGC also provided high-level workforce strategies for the Town's consideration, which led to a Phase II engagement.
- In April 2025, PFMGC was reengaged by the Town to develop a Police Compensation Study. In addition to comparing salaries between Ocean View and comparable jurisdictions, PFMGC also compared compensation based on career progressions of 20, 25, and 30 years of service and compared additional cash compensation (e.g., one-time bonuses) and benefits as part of the study.
- The engagement was completed with an evaluation of the Town's police compensation competitiveness relative to comparable jurisdictions as well as a pay scale recommendation for the Town's future consideration.
